

This year, Sh'ma entered into a collaborative partnership with a wide range of academic and rabbinic institutions to build on the magazine's longstanding commitment to exploring Jewish life in the fullest, most open, and most critically-engaged manner. Sh'ma – now in its 38th year – is, more than ever, pertinent to the intellectual agendas of members of the Association for Jewish Studies. Recent and upcoming issues feature discussions about "Teaching Israel," "Neo-Conservatism and the Jews," "Trans-sexual and Trans-gender Identities," "In Dialogue with Communal Philanthropists," and much more. Each issue is devoted to a topic; every issue seeks to air the widest range of viewpoints in discussions that are pluralistic, and often immensely surprising. We invite you to join this ongoing discussion by subscribing at rates specially offered to AJS members.
